More Than Million "Dope Fiends" In United States; Report Shows

MEXICAN EXILE RECOVERS LOSSES

NOTWITHSTANDING HIS MISFORTUNE, HE BELIEVES CONDITIONS IN MEXICO ARE GETTING BETTER.

By the Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 13.—Enrique C. Creel, twice Mexican ambassador to the United States, minister of foreign affairs in the cabinet of Porfirio Diaz and for many years governor of the Mexican state of Chihuahua, now living in exile in Los Angeles, has just divulged for the first time how the Carranza government has returned to him and his family securities valued at more than $1,000,000, and of how valuable property. He told, also, his belief that conditions in Mexico are rapidly improving.

The securities, hidden in two large boxes since 1914, have been restored to his sons, Edward, Henry and Salvador, who, under the name of Creel Brothers, conducted a banking establishment in the City of Mexico. To the former Mexican ambassador has been returned his family home in the Mexican capital. "As yet," said Senor Creel, "my estates have not been returned to me, but, as conditions in Mexico are steadily improving, I believe they soon will be."

"When the first revolution came in 1914," recalled Senor Creel, "my sons packed away in two large boxes securities owned by client of Creel Brothers and valued at more than $1,000,000, together with valuable papers of my own. The boxes were placed for safekeeping in a vault at the Banco Central Mexicano, in Mexico City.

"The forces which captured the city found them, seized them, and took them to the capitol where they have been lying for more than four years. In that period, the government has been making an investigation to learn if Creel Brothers had been involved in political machinations against it. Recently the official report of the establishment had been guilty of no political activities was made and the government directed the return of the securities and of my residence in the capital.

"As my sons now are living in the United States, the boxes were returned to their attorney, Francisco C. Terrazas, in Mexico City, who has distributed them to clients of Creel Brothers. Nothing was missing."

Senor Creel, now about 60 years old, short, with gray mustache, is living here in semi-seclusion. Since he left his native land he has not returned, but through correspondence with friends in Mexico he has become convinced that "a better day is dawning there."

This view is held also by Adolfo Carrillo, formerly Mexican consul here, who has just returned from Mexico City, where he has a conference with President Carranza.

"Business is booming in the Mexican capital," declared Senor Carrillo. "There is plenty of money. One sees only gold and silver. Laborers are now paid $2.50 a day, as compared with $1 a day several years ago.

"President Carranza told me he welcomes Americans and American capital, but that he does not believe anyone should have a monopoly in any business."

Jose Garza Zertuche, recently appointed Mexican consul here also declares conditions in Mexico are rapidly returning to normal. He said he did not take seriously the recent proclamation by Villa forces of General Felipe Angeles as provisional president of Mexico and of Francisco Villa as secretary of war.

Salvaging of Steamers Sunk by the Germans Is Thrilling Adventure

LONDON, May 16.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—

There is a spice of adventure in the salvaging of steamers sunk by German raiders. Round the British Isles, in the Mediterranean and off the Murman coast are rich fields for the salvage service as well as private enterprise. In the North Sea the water is too deep to make any considerable success, but in shallower water not only cargoes but ships are being saved.

Some of the sunken vessels contain huge fortunes in gold or goods. One is known to have carried $5,000,000 in gold. The diver sent down to work on her borrowed the key to the ship's strong box, but it is not recorded whether he retrieved the gold.

If the divers after an investigation decide to attempt to float the ship, barges are moored over her at low tide. Nine-inch wire ropes are then passed under it and fastened to the barges above. As the tide rises the barges rise with it, bringing the ship along, as it lies in the great wire cradle. The damaged ship is then towed into shallow water and the necessary repairs made.

In the case of vessels only partly submerged compressed air is sometimes pumped into her hold, driving out the water while the ship slowly floats to the surface. Occasionally it is necessary, where the hole is not too large, to make a great patch, float it over the hole, and then fasten it sufficiently tight in position until the ship can be pumped out and floated.

One vessel was torpedoed in the Channel, but almost reached the shore before it went down. When it finally sunk it was exposed at low tide, and not so very far from a railroad. Heavy locomotives pulled the vessel into a perpendicular position and the vessel finally refloated.

While these salvage operations have been numeratively successful, leaders in the industry declare that it is next to impossible to save a ship lying in water deeper than her masts, and that very many ships will never be brought up. But they do not despair as to the cargo if the ship lies in less than 200 feet of water. Divers can operate with comparative ease at that depth.

Many sailors recently demobilized have cast their lot with the government salvage corps or with some one of the private corporations which have taken up the work. The pay is good while there is always an element of danger.

Officials of the Commercial Telegraphers Union of America, were elated over an announcement from St. Louis that union telegraphers were ordered to discontinue handling commercial business at 6 a. m. Saturday.

The first steps toward a settlement of the strike were taken when the officials of the Commercial Telegraphers Union submitted to the Postal Telegraph Company today conditions upon which an agreement could be based. The conditions, in effect, provide that the strike be called off so far as the Postal is concerned if that company will agree to a wage adjustment immediately after full control has been given the company by the wire administration. The conditions, understood to have been requested by the Postal, have been forwarded to New York.

LIQUOR QUESTION UP IN ARKANSAS

MANDAMUS PROCEEDINGS ARE BROUGHT TO FORCE REFERENDUM PETITION BEFORE PEOPLE FOR VOTE.

By the Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 13.—Mandamus proceedings to compel Thomas J. Terral, secretary of state, to accept the petition asking a referendum vote on the action of the Arkansas legislature in ratifying the eighteenth (prohibition) amendment to the federal constitution, will be heard in the Pulaski County Circuit court before Judge G. W. Hendricks early next week.

When the referendum petition containing 8,202 names of legal voters, was presented to the secretary of state a few days ago, asking that he put the measure on the ballot November 2, 1920, he refused to accept it relying on the advice of Attorney General John D. Arbuckle that the amendment cannot be submitted to the people. No matter what the decision of the circuit court, it is believed very probable the question will be carried to the supreme court, and if it is, decision is not expected before the summer vacation.

Under the state initiative and referendum act, a referendum petition requires the signature of 5 percent of the number voting for governor at the preceding election. In this instance the number required is 3,650, and the number obtained is 4,552 in excess of the requirement.

The petition declares the act prohibiting the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within the territory of the United States, contains no words to indicate that an emergency existed, or declaring one in fact, which, in itself makes the act referable.

In the opinion given by the attorney general, he holds that the resolution of the recent general assembly ratifying the federal amendment cannot be referred under the initiative and referendum amendment, because it was not adopted by a joint "act," but was adopted by a joint resolution of both houses, and that the resolution is not such an act as can be referred by petition from the people of the state.

TO PREVENT VOTE ON KNOX RESOLUTION

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 13.—After an extended conference a group of leading democratic United States senators announced today that they would prevent, if possible, a vote in the resolution of Senator Knox, introduced in the Senate a few days ago, the sense of which was to the effect that the peace treaty, with the league of nations covenant included, was unacceptable.

CITIZENS STRIKE COMING IN BERLIN

ACTION TAKEN BECAUSE PRESIDENT GOVERNMENT IS NOT CAPABLE OF SAVING COUNTRY, SAY LEADERS.

By the Associated Press

BERLIN, June 13.—At a secret session of the Citizen Council of Greater Berlin, held last Wednesday, the council declared in favor of a citizen's strike, according to a report in Die Freiheit, an independent socialist newspaper.

The conference included a number of the leading manufacturers, merchants and professional men, and also Colonel Reinhardt, Prussian minister of war.

The paper quoted the chairman of the meeting as saying that the strike was necessary because of the fact, as he stated that the present government is incapable of redeeming Germany from chaos.

U. S. IS TO BRING FARMERS TO STATE

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 13.—The superior advantages of Oklahoma for farming and livestock raising will be brought to the attention of homeseekers and other desirable investors in the United States and Europe, according to J. F. Jarrell of Washington, supervisor of the Homeseekers' bureau, who arrived in Oklahoma City yesterday.

To meet the demand for information about farm opportunities in Oklahoma's production, transportation facilities, market, land values, schools, churches, roads, living conditions, etc., has been printed by the government railroad administration and copies will be sent to all making inquiry. The booklet will be followed by the distribution of bulletins with reference to crops and the agricultural conditions generally.

COUNCIL OF FOUR REVISE TREATY TEXT

By the Associated Press

PARIS, June 13.—The Council of Four devoted both of its sessions yesterday to a revision of the text of the peace treaty with Germany.

When the forenoon session ended, the council sent to the revision commission eighteen reports to be considered by them.

Among those remaining to be passed are several dealing with many questions of importance.

***** WE DIDN'T MEAN IT. ***** We have always had a very high regard for the local agent of the Oklahoma, T. O. Culinas, and we are acquainted with the editor of the Oklahoma man and many of the men connected with the office, and hold them all in high esteem. This remark is made by way of prefacing what we really mean to say, that is that we do not intentionally mean to go against the circulation of the Oklahoma paper by publishing a paper equal to it in news value. Those who stopped the Oklahoma when the News became a metropolitan daily should not have done so for the very good reason that it carries state news which the News rejects to give space to local matter and, too, morning papers and evening papers have an entirely different service, making it necessary for a man to take both a morning and evening paper if he expects to keep well informed. This statement is made in deference to our friends all the way round, and we trust that it will be received in the spirit in which it was written. *****

Germany Robbed Rumania, Says a Red Cross Agent Writing From Budapest

ATHENS, May 5.—(By Mail)—

Germany has stripped Rumania of everything, writes a Red Cross agent from Budapest. There are only eighty-four locomotives in the whole country for the transport of troops, munitions and supplies. Of her seventeen theoretical divisions eleven have had to be demobilized for lack of food and equipment. There are not sufficient horses to transport field artillery, no tractors for the field artillery, forty per cent of the Rumanian medical staffs died during the war and there are virtually no airplanes, armored cars or tanks.

Despite the efforts of the authorities, the country is harboring bolshevik agents smuggled in by Russia, Hungary and Bulgaria. As 60 per cent of Rumania is illiterate the bolshevik danger is apparent.

The greatest need is food. Food for the army and food for the civilian population. America has sent a dozen food ships to Rumania and the American Red Cross is distributing food at canteens and by means of rolling soup kitchens wherever the need is greatest. In the Dobruja where the smallpox epidemic is at its worst the American Red Cross has many doctors and nurses.

America has loaned Rumania $5,000,000 but the financial situation of the country remains critical, writes the Red Cross man. This he attributes to Rumania's inability to export and to the broadcast issue during the German occupation of worthless banknotes.

In addition to food the Rumanian army and civilian population desperately need clothing. Cloth for a suit of clothes costs $60 a yard. A yard of linen for shirts costs $8 and a shirt of ordinary quality, $40. A pound of butter costs $5.50.

"How can America help Rumanian army officer was asked. "Continue your splendid shipments of food through the American Army Food mission and the American Red Cross," replied the officer. "Send us propaganda written by Americans to be dropped by airplanes in the bolshevik ranks. We must fight ideas with ideas. Our railroad and transport system is a wreck. Send us some of the American railroad men who did such wonderful work in France."

Switchmen to Strike.

By the Associated Press

WINNIPEG, June 13.—Officials of Winnipeg switchmen's and trainmen's locals announced this afternoon that they had voted to go on strike at 6 o'clock tonight.

Muskogee Citizens Walk While Officers Endeavor to Prevent More Violence

MUSKOGEE, Okla., June 13.—Citizens of Muskogee are still walking, as a result of the street car strike which started here over two weeks ago, while the city and county officials are watching the situation and endeavoring to keep down further violence.

J. J. Green, president of the street car men's union; E. W. Richie, secretary; seven other union car men, and Tom Miller, a sympathizer, made bonds of $1,000 each at noon Thursday and were released from custody, after all but one of them had spent the night in jail on charges of assault with intent to kill growing out of the disturbance on the Okmulgee car line Tuesday afternoon. The preliminary hearing is set for next Wednesday the next regular criminal day in city court.

A conference in progress yesterday afternoon between Manager R. D. Long of the Muskogee Traction company and C. E. Connally, state labor commissioner, was the climax to a series of eventual possibilities that were expected to lead to an adjustment of the street car situation which has kept Muskogee citizens walking for the past two weeks. The appearance of Mr. Connally on the scene last night brought into play another element in the already complex strike situation.

Briefly the developments of the past twenty-four hours may be summed up as follows:

An attempt by Mr. Connally to bring about arbitration of the differences between the strikers and the company.

Arrest and release on bond of nine union men and one union sympathizer charged with assault with intent to kill.

Departure of J. B. Lawson, international organizer of the street car union, together with unconfirmed reports of resignation of C. M. Smith, president of the Central Labor Union.

Sheriff Robbins and Chief of Police Hughes deputizing special officers to man cars when next effort is made to run cars; can't get as many as 100 for service by Friday, but promise to have enough at barns to put three on at least one car for each line.

Condemnation of violence by union leaders.

Declaration by Manager Long that cars would not be started until 125 men were deputized for protection of life and property.

Possibility of the street cars be-

REVOLUTION IN MEXICO STILL CAUSING TROUBLE

JUAREZ, June 13.—After a day of anxiety Juarez is still in the hands of federal forces. Rebel troops are reported on three sides of the town at distances variously estimated at from two to twenty miles.

The military authorities are reticent about the whereabouts of the rebels, but the general belief is that to the east of Juarez they are just beyond rifle range of the federal trenches.

Five hundred federal cavalry which left in that direction early this morning had not returned up to 8 o'clock tonight but General Gonzales said he has been in constant touch with them through runners.

In the downtown district, stores remained open as usual today but there was a noticeable absence of customers. Many of the more well-to-do residents have already sought refuge in El Paso and others are prepared to go at a moment's notice.

Final Flashes From A. P. Wires

By the Associated Press

PARIS, June 13.—The British have made an eleventh-hour attempt to reopen the question of reparations. They submitted proposals introducing into functions of permanent reparations commissions the principle of control of raw materials etc., furnished Germany, enabling the commission to control Germany's economic development during the period of its operation.

Treaty to Be Re-written.

PARIS, June 13.—The peace treaty with Germany will be entirely re-written and re-printed for incorporation, eventually, of explanations and clarifications contained in an allied reply to German counter proposals. While unchanged in principle, virtually a new document will be presented to Germany.

APPALLING USE OF NARCOTIC DRUGS IN UNITED STATES IS SHOWN BY INVESTIGATORS.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The nation-wide use of narcotic drugs, for other than legitimate medical purposes, has steadily increased despite the most vigorous efforts of enforcement officials for the last four years.

This information was revealed in Washington today when the United States treasury's special investigating committee made its final report.

According to the report the number of drug addicts in the United States is estimated at over a million. Few people realize that the appalling conditions exist, and the report will prove a great surprise to the great majority of the people who were under the impression that the federal anti-drug law, known as the Harrison act, was bullet proof and that it had not been violated to any great extent.

It has been known for some time that there were several thousand hopeless drug addicts in the United States at the time the Harrison act went into effect, who had to be treated by physicians and "cure" institutions, but the fact that the evil is on the increase in spite of the stringent prohibition laws is a condition that makes a riddle hard to solve.

STATE'S VISITING SOLDIERS TO BOWIE FOR DISCHARGE

By the Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 13.—The one hundred and eleventh engineers and the one hundred and thirty-first machine gun battalion spent the day here today on their way to Camp Bowie for demobilization.

The one hundred and eleventh supply train is delayed and has not yet arrived. All of these are units of the thirty-sixth division and are en route to Camp Bowie to be mustered out of the service.

OKLAHOMA CITY 'PHONE OPERATORS TO JOIN STRIKE

By the Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 13.—Union electrical workers employed on telephone lines in Oklahoma City are included in a nation-wide strike order for 8 o'clock Monday morning, according to O. A. Waller, secretary of local 155, which is the city unit of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. The call comes from Springfield, Ill., national headquarters of the union.

RACE RIOTS IN WALES OVER LABOR MATTER

By the Associated Press

LONDON, June 13.—There was a renewal last night in Cardiff, Wales, of race rioting which broke out recently between negroes who had been brought into Great Britain as laborers during the war, and the white population which is enraged because of the fact that the negro elements is now a menace to the country.

During the outbreak last night one white man and one Arab were killed, while several were severely injured. Many arrests were made by the officers.

BABE CHANEY'S AUTOMOBILE IGNITES

By the Associated Press

Thursday morning as Babe Chaney was on his return home from Roff, the Haynes touring car which he was driving caught fire and burned to the ground in the twinkling of an eye. The cause of this sudden explosion seemed to be the result of a shortage in the ignition wire.

Potatoes Wanted.

Beginning Monday, June 16, we will buy all the good potatoes you have to sell, paying spot cash as soon as potatoes are delivered and weighed at car, Frisco yards, Ada, Okla. Please observe the following rules: Grade out all potatoes under one and three-quarter inches in diameter, all cuts or scabby potatoes. ## EXAMINATION BEING HELD

ARE COMPETING FOR THE SCHOLARSHIP IN A. &
M. COLLEGE.

County Superintendent A. Floyd is busy in his office today holding the examination for those boys who are competing for scholarships in the A. & M. College of Oklahoma. The scholarship fund was created by the last legislature. Two boys from each county are entitled to it, those making the highest grades in the examination being chosen. The winners are entitled to all the benefits of the regular course in the A. & M. institution, and all they have to do is to agree to work at farming as long a time as they attend the college.

The following Pontotoc county boys are taking the examination: David Overturf, Ada. William Riddle, Ada. Jimmie Ragland, Oakman. James Auten, Union Valley. Byron Rucker, Center. Grady Allen, Lovelady. Eustace McMinn, Lovelady.

WOODMEN TO ATTEND SASAKWA UNVEILING

It is expected that one of the largest crowds of the season will go to Sasakwa next Sunday to attend the unveiling to deceased Woodmen. The unveiling will be done by the Woodmen and Circle teams, several camps taking part.

District Manager W. C. Williams states that he expects no less than 150 members to go from Ada and that all who attend will be well repaid for their trip as it is expected to be a very impressive ceremony. The Ada team will attend from Circle and Woodmen camps. All members are urged to attend.

Those who go by rail will take the Frisco train at 11:38 a. m. The train will make a special stop at the Sasakwa cemetery. Returning the train will arrive at Ada at 7:10 p. m.

ALSATIAN FARM SHOWN IN "WHY GERMANY'S MUST PAY"

An Alsatian farm in all its picturesque and old world detail will be one of the original scenes to appear in "Why Germany Must Pay," the tremendous Screen Classics Inc. production which will be the attraction at the American theater opening today for a two-day engagement.

This cottage is supposed to be the home of the young Alsatian soldier, Conrad Le Bret, played by Creighton Hale, who later deserts from the German army to join the cause of the Allies. The house used in the picture might have been transplanted bodily from some quiet Alsatian town before the war, but was in reality, found by Director Miller in his careful search for the locations and settings for his big production. It is situated in a little Pennsylvania town about twenty miles from the nearest railroad station and was built by early French settlers. To add to the realism of the scene the farmyard was pictured with its large flocks of geese and ducks, chickens and pigeons, while pigs, cows and other live stock strive for a place in the camera.

A PET STOCK BUILDING AT MUSKOGEE FAIR GROUNDS

MUSKOGEE, June 13.—A building with floor space of approximately 25,000 square feet will be provided for poultry and pets at the Oklahoma Free State Fair, here this fall. It has just been announced. A building now on the grounds near the new Oklahoma building and the main entrance is to be remodeled to have 15,000 square feet on the lower floor and 10,000 on the second floor, the latter to be used for the pet stock, such as rabbits. Officers for the superintendent of the building and for the poultry judges will be placed in the front of the building.

It is to be painted a brilliant white, and for this reason and because of its size, will probably attract a great deal of attention from fair visitors.

MICKIE SAYS

OUR REPORTER SAYS
WOT GITS HIS GOAT IS THAT THE FELLER WHO NEVER GIVES HIM ANY
NEWS IS ALWAYS HOLLERIN'
ABOUT THEY BEIN' NO
NEWS IN THE PAPER!

Ice Plant Busy

A reporter for the News called at the Ada ice plant yesterday afternoon. He found the force, both office and mechanical as busy as bees.

The ice plant now is one of the largest business institutions in the city. There is to be no complaint of their service this year because they have erected one of the largest ice storage houses in the state and not only are equipped to take care of the Ada trade but are shipping many car loads of ice to surrounding towns.

The ice cream part of this business is busy, too. They are supply all the cold drink establishments in the city, all the residences in the city and every train going out of the town is carrying packers of this delicious refreshment. They report that they are now manufacturing about 300 gallons of cream daily.

Peculiar Hawaiian Flowers.

It is known that upon many of the summits of the high mountain ridges of the Hawaiian islands, in the regions of heavy rainfall, are open bogs which support a peculiar and interesting flora. Many species form more or less hemispherical tussocks which rise above the general level of the bog. A showy lobelia with numerous large cream-colored flowers as much as three and a half inches long, peculiar violets and a sundew are found there.

Unwise Business Men.

There be those who are ready to rush into great ventures on suspicion. It is wiser, not having made a careful and exhaustive survey of the situation, nor having counted the cost.

Anglo-Saxons.

The Angles, or Engles, were a people once located in a part of the world now known as Schleswig-Holstein and who accompanied or immediately followed the Saxons into England. The Angles are believed to have been the more powerful race, for they occupied the larger portion of Britain, and they gave their name to the land, for out of Engle grew the word England and the Saxons made the word Anglo-Saxon.

Warlike Cherokee Race Fast Becoming Extinct Through Intermarriage

Tribe Mixed With Whites From Ancient Time When First Met Europeans—Interesting History of Noted Red Nation Given.

As a nation of Indians the Cherokees of eastern Oklahoma are becoming extinct through blending with the white race. Steady amalgamation with the latter race for more than 150 years has had the inevitable result of greatly decreasing the real native, the full-blood Indian. They are now largely in the minority. A large number of the half bloods, dark of color, black-eyed and black-haired, are often mistaken for full-bloods, though there are others of half blood who show more of the characteristics of the white race. Intermarriage of whites and Indians began in the long ago period when the Cherokees were living east of the Mississippi river where they came in contact with the colonists at a period long previous to that at which other aborigines first met of European blood.

Brave and Warlike.

According to traditions of the early Cherokees, those who could speak no English, the original Cherokees, or Tchera-fire, came from the direction of the rising sun. Ninety years ago there was living near New Echota, the capital of the old Cherokee nation east of the Mississippi, a very aged member of the nation, at least 90 years of age. This wrinkled and picturesque native was visited one day in 1829 by the Rev. Samuel A. Worcester, a Protestant missionary then in charge of the mission work at the Cherokee capital, and by Elias Boudinot, editor of the "Cherokee Phoenix," the first newspaper established by an Indian race. The missionary and the editor visited the aged man for the purpose of learning some of the traditions of the ancient Cherokees. Among the other things the old Cherokee told his visitors that the Cherokees had long been coming from the direction of the rising sun; that they had been from ancient times a brave and warlike people. The first white men they ever saw was in 1540 when Ferdinand De Soto and his expedition passed through the country of the Cherokees on their way to the shores of the Mississippi river, in whose waters the bold "white chief" was destined to find a grave. Many moon moons passed away and the next people seen by the Cherokees were colonists of Virginia.

Many Cherokee Names.

The names of many streams in North and South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia and Tennessee were originally Cherokee names but the pronunciation at this time is so corrupted that it is very hard to recognize them with the Cherokee language. The Hiwassee, a tributary of the Tennessee, is in the Cherokee called Aguwasi, Tellico, also in Tennessee, should be called Tablequah, and the Unicoi mountains in North Carolina should be Unake, a word meaning white. The very fact that most of the streams and mountains in the states mentioned bear Cherokee names is proof that they originally owned a vast tract of territory along the Atlantic seaboard and in the mountains and valleys.

The Cherokees were a warlike people and carried on war for many a year with the Mohawks, Senecas, Delaware and other tribes of the north. The Mohawks, Oneidas and Onondagas roamed over what is now New York state and the Delaware in Pennsylvania. All these tribes were nomads, but the Cherokees when first beheld by Europeans lived in rude though comfortable huts made of the branches of trees and the skins of wild animals. It seems probable that the Cherokees were the once powerful tribe ruled over by Powhatan at the time of the Capt. John Smith and Pocahontas episode.

During the war of the American Revolution the Cherokees were allied by treaty agreements with Great Britain but took no prominent part in the war. The agent for the Cherokees under King George III was Capt. John McDonald, a Scotchman who had married a half white and half Cherokee woman. His daughter, Mollie McDonald, became the wife of Daniel Ross, a native of Inverness, Scotland, who entered the Cherokee nation near the close of the revolutionary war. The oldest son of Daniel Ross and Mollie McDonald became the celebrated John Ross, who for 38 years was the principal chief of the Cherokees both east and west of the Mississippi.

During the administration of President Washington it was thought wise to secure the allegiance and friendship of the Cherokees, so a delegation of their leading men was invited to visit the seat of government then at Philadelphia. A great feast was given the delegates when they met the president, Washington presiding. As a mark of distinction the Cherokees were seated at the right hand of the president. As a result of the visit a treaty was entered into with the delegates.

Early Visit to London. Long previous to the establishment of the United States government several Cherokees had visited London. In 1780 Oconostata, a famous chief, was a guest of some of the great men of the British government. Oconostata's visit was due to the interest taken in him by General James Oglethorpe. In 1730 Sir Alexander Cummin, a special agent of the British king, visited the Cherokees in their mountain homes and six chiefs were fortunate enough to be sent across the sea to behold the scenes of the capital of the British Empire.

The ancient Cherokees were divided in seven clans, among these clans being the famous Eagle clan from which a number of the most famous descended. It was death for a man or a woman to marry a member of the same clan. In the very few instances where the rule was violated the ones guilty were executed without delay. The clans all followed the other's side and all women belonging to the mother's clan were called mothers and all the men in the father's clan were called fathers.

Among the very early Cherokees were three towns called in English "cities of refuge." These towns, Tellico or Tablequah, to be correct; Gittuwa and Echota, were situated in what is now east Tennessee. They were in existence long before the dawn of civilization in the new world. If a man killed another and succeeded in reaching one of these three towns he could not be slain by any of the relatives of the person he had killed. It was a custom when a man was killed for the relatives of the deceased to kill the slayer, if possible, with the same weapon and in the same manner that the one killed had been slain, so the cities of refuge were resorted to whenever it was possible to reach them by flight.

Your Voice—Are You Taking Right Interest In It?

As I sat at my window study I heard a voice in the distance, "Old rags' Old boots!" says a writer in the Philadelphia Record. The peripatetic junk buyer drew gradually near and I was more and more struck by the beauty of his voice. Ah, I thought, wouldn't some people hand him over gold if they could but obtain for it such a mellancholy, lovely voice.

Just as the voice of this "rag merchant" thus termed by courtesy, struck me, so do other voices which break in upon my daily round impress me very badly indeed. Ask yourself, "What is it first influences your opinion of a stranger?" To be sure it's personality. And the voice is undeniably related to personality. As much, if not more so that the well-manicured finger nails the essayists lay so much stress upon. You can never wear gloves on a voice, you know. It is pretty difficult to stay silent all the time.

To think how the voice can so display the emotions—joy, anger, fear, etc. Sometimes it gives you away.

Yet it is astonishing how little time people in general spend upon the "grooming" of this asset. Most of us are born with passably fine vocal organs; though, perhaps, not so fine as those of the opera singer prodigy or six months who covered the scale remarkably well even while in tears. So what our voice is today is just what we ourselves have made of it and perhaps it is thus necessary to undo the bad habits of some few years. But it can be done to a certain degree.

There is a college not so very far away where they are very thorough in the matter of voice training. A two years' course (of about an hour a week) is given with exercises, reading aloud, and examinations. Any girl who can get through it with a trace of nasality or tight larynx or a thick "R," well, she must be pretty expert in the art of camouflaging.

All this goes to prove that something can be done about your voice. It isn't like a mouth, for a large mouth cannot be made smaller, or eyes, for mere mud-brown eyes cannot be made into large, luscious, velvety ones. But a voice, yes, a lot can be done with it. Of course, an instructor helps a lot, but, then, the person concerned must enter into the spirit of the reform. Train the ear to be sensitive to your own tones. In other words, make allies of the mouth and ear.

Practice, practice, practice. Even as you scrub the floor or mind the baby. "F-duff, f-duff, f-duff, fr-r-r—" Accustom yourself, your vocal cords and your family to the proper tones. Modulate your tones, avoid nasality. Results come quickly once you're on the right track.

About the kiddies, they are entitled to the best start in life that they can be given to them. Early training in the art of beautiful speech is invaluable, and if a child hears the proper intonations he will have little to change in his own speech as he grows older. Think of the joys of childhood, being read aloud to when the voice of the reader is a joy to hear.

And the funny part about it is that some of the biggest talkers—by that I mean the people who talk unpleasantly—produce the most unpleasant and harsh tones. The reason for that probably is that their sense of fitness of sounds in their proper form has been "shell-shocked," as it were.

Eyeless Oysters.

The oyster has a good-sized stomach, which is connected with the mouth by a short gullet; two pairs of gills for breathing, an intestine, a dark green liver, a two-chambered heart and an elementary nervous system, but is minus ears, nose and eyes. It also lacks the footlike appendage that many mollusks possess for the reason that it has no need of an organ of locomotion.

Children that are affected by worms are pale and sickly and liable to contract some fatal disease. WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE expels worms promptly and puts the child on the road to health. Price 30c per bottle. Sold by Bart Smith. (Adv.)

"The Shepherd of the Hills."

Pastoral simplicity of the kind that approaches grandeur is the inspiring theme in the picturization of "The Shepherd of the Hills," the photoplay which will be seen at the American Theatre, June 18 and 19. The rugged honesty and worth of the men that lead simple lives in the sequestered Ozarks are graphically depicted. These men, tall and upstanding, are the same type as the sturdy fine trees that reach up towards the stars from the eternal hills; the same type of men who landed upon Plymouth Rock and laid the foundation for this land of ours. In this great photoplay are shown these truly American people, living today as their forefathers did; men of giant strength and the kindness of children. The people in this play really live their lives. There is no sham, no affectation. They love, hate, and have their being all unconscious of the fact that they are portraying the great drama of life. The scenic background for this great drama is supplied from a region rich in nature's beauty and a part of the country which has seldom been photographed. The play consists of ten reels with special musical interpretations.

PURITAN OIL COOK STOVES

"WHATEVER the occasion may be, the Puritan Oil Cook Stove does its work on time, promptly—and in addition gives you the comfort of a clean, cool kitchen."

From Puritan advertising—Pictorial Review—May, 1919.

Set the utensil in a clean hot flame that comes up through the grate—like gas. Indicator on each burner shows low, medium, high flame—and you change the heat as easily as you set the indicator. At full heat the indicator's automatic wick stop prevents smoking. Brass burners—last for years.

Reversible Glass Oil Reservoir

State Normal School Will Have "Movies" For Summer

For two years colleges and advanced schools have realized that their greatest need is systematized constructive entertainment that will appeal to faculty, student, and patron alike. Theatricals, chautauquas and lyceums have been tried out thoroughly but have only partially met the needs. Recently educators have turned very definitely to consider the possibility of "selected movies." But this very selecting process is a colossal task in itself and just about prohibitive for the present overworked school authorities.

So a selecting bureau of some sort seemed to be the first essential. Recently there were organized two powerful "selected movies" companies, namely, "The Pathe," and "The Community Motion Picture" Bureaus.

President Gordon has been studying this possibility of educational movies for some time and today was able to close an unusually satisfactory contract with the "Community Bureau" to put on one picture a week for the remainder of the summer term.

Each program will be very complete, very entertaining and very educational. There will be every variety.

In stories from literature there will be "The Art Bug," "Vanity Fair," "To Have and to Hold," "How Could You, Jean?" (played by Mary Pickford), "Les Miserables," "Oliver Twist," "The Last Leaf," "Romeo and Juliet," and others.

In incidental reels there will be pictured community development, summer camp for girls, public nurseries, history of today, the great animals, prehistoric animals, square dealing at home.

In history and geography there will be Europe, Asia, Africa and the Americas, and some fine reels on France and the United States, with a special of the western half. Nature study, physiology, hygiene and general science come in for a share in one program or another.

It is a great thing for the normal students to have these pictures, already censored and selected for the best results in entertainment and education, and it shows a mighty progressive spirit in President Gordon to take this advanced step in education.

SWEDISH LUTHERANS TAKING TO ENGLISH

By the Associated Press
LINDSBORG, Kan., June 13.—The growing domination of the English language in the work of the Swedish Lutheran church was emphasized by the Rev. G. A. Brandelle of Rock Island, Ill., president of the Lutheran Augustana Synod, in his opening address before the sixtieth annual convention of the body here today. One thousand delegates and visitors from various sections of the United States and Canada are attending the week's meeting.

"The language of the land is rapidly becoming the dominant language and in some conferences the retrogression of the Swedish is very marked," he said.

The establishment of a mission in Africa next fall, was announced by the president. He also reported favorable progress from the missionaries in China, but declared political conditions hampered the work of the church's representatives in India. Home mission demands, Reverend Brandelle said, were stripping the resources of the church for that purpose.

Educational institutions and charitable homes maintained by the church are in good financial condition, he reported.

An increase in the total of the Pension Fund of the church was announced and the statement made that the amount allotted to aged and infirm ministers would soon be increased from two hundred to five hundred dollars annually.

"The Shepherd of the Hills."

The filmization of the great novel, "The Shepherd of the Hills," has been a year in the making. The author, Harold Bell Wright, wrote the scenario for the pictures and has directed every detail. His associates, consisting of actors, actresses, artists, photographers, have numbered over two hundred people, not to mention the people shown in the mob scenes. Also there are a large number of live stock used—horses, cattle, one hundred and fifty sheep, collie dogs, birds and what not. This company was together a year, sometimes in California, other times in the Ozark mountains of Missouri. Mr. Wright, who is a great stickler for detail, has spared no expense in his efforts to keep the ensemble as nearly like the original as possible, throughout the entire picture. For taken to complete the picture. For instance, the flock of sheep was first secured in the Ozarks. When the work was finished there, it was thought that the sheep would be left there. Here Mr. Wright voiced an objection. There was one scene to be taken in California which must have some sheep in the background, so the original sheep actors had to travel to California to appear in that particular scene before they could be dismissed. A very effective detail and only one of the multitude which help to make "The Shepherd of the Hills" a truly great picture.

The Sole Survivor

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Rhoda Lusk was singing fully a quarter of her time, smiling and cheery whenever she was with her friends, and happy all of the time. Just now she was unusually joyous and she went tripping about the house thinking herself the most fortunate young lady that ever was, or could be.

For the past six months of her life had been a rare and radiant romance. She had met Ronald Dudley, and her fate, at one and the same time. He was a manly, handsome young fellow and he had won the good will of Rhoda's parents and that of all her other relatives. Ronald had to go South to settle an estate, would return for good in six months, and then there was to be a grand wedding and the young couple would settle down in a pretty bungalow within sight, and even call, of the Lusk home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lusk had rented the old Marsden mansion for five years. It was ready at hand, had a beautiful garden and was sumptuously furnished. Miss Marcia Williston had inherited it from her widowed mother, had found it lonesome living all by herself and had decided to make a permanent home with a married sister.

She was a tall, stately woman of perhaps thirty, and had given up her home as had she given up the hope of passing many happy hours under that roof. Rhoda had heard her story and it excited gentle pity in her gentle soul. For five years Miss Williston had waited for the lover, the pledged fiancé, who never came. There had fallen to him through a legacy several whaling vessels, and he had sailed away in one of them to familiarize himself with the business that was to bring him his living income. His voyage was to end in a year. Two went by, three. Nothing was heard of the missing North Star, or its owner, or the crew. Mutely Miss Williston bowed with resignation to the blow that swept from life all she cared living for. She never paraded her sorrow before others.

"If Ronald should meet the face of Miss Williston's poor lover!" breathed Rhoda, and she shuddered at the mere thought. "Oh, I must not forget," she added. "Mamma told me to be sure to find some odd corner or closet where we can put our umbrellas and rubbers."

Her parents had gone downtown to obtain some odds and ends needed for kitchen use, and except for the cook no one was in the house except Rhoda. She puzzled her active brain searching for a suggestion as to the disposition of umbrellas and rubbers, and finally gave up the task as she dropped to a window seat under the arched window in the reception hall.

"The only way I see is to buy a narrow wardrobe and fit it into the corner under the stairs," planned Rhoda, and then, arising from the window seat she noticed that its oak top moved. She had not observed before that the top was hinged. "Just the place!" she exclaimed, lifting the board. "Oh, my!"

Rhoda stood transfixed gazing down into the deep, long space. There was a layer of tissue paper at its bottom. Above showed a bewildering array of finery—silk, satin, ribbons, embroidery, a wedding dress and veil and dainty slippers; in fact all the accessories of an elegant bride's trousseau. Rhoda stood in an enraptured dream. Only when for the second time the door bell rang, did she hasten to the vestibule. She unlocked the screen door latch and admitted Miss Williston.

"I came to remove some personal belongings," began the latter, and then, with a sharp catch in her voice, stared at the finery exposed in the interior of the window seat. Her lips trembled and a quick pallor came into her face. In an instant Rhoda comprehended that the trousseau must be the one she had prepared when her lover went away and had not returned. Rhoda looked awed, sorry. She was almost at the point of tears, as she realized how cruelly the unexpected confrontation must lacerate the heart of her visitor.

"It was quite by accident that I lifted the cover," began Rhoda, but Miss Williston, with a wan, but kindly smile, stroked the golden hair of this more fortunate fiancée, as she recovered her wonted calmness.

"You have not offended nor hurt me, dear," she said. "It was after those reminders of a happy dream that I came, but long since the memory of the one I loved and lost has become a consolation. Come, all your bright happiness in life is before you! We may add to it by looking over my cherished mementoes."

To both those mementoes were precious and sacred. In her quiet way Miss Williston showed one after another of the articles. She even placed the veil upon her head to please Rhoda, and then—

"Marcia! My Marcia!"

A bronzed, weather-worn man had burst in the screen door. He caught the swaying form of the wife that was to be in his strong arms and covered her face with kisses. And then, as Marcia revived and clung to him sobbing amid her wild joy, she heard the words that told her that he alone of the ice-crushed North Star had escaped back to civilization after half a decade exile in far Arctic regions.

WORLD'S RECORD IS BROKEN BY TANLAC

BOTTLES SOLD IN FOUR YEARS WOULD REACH FROM NEW YORK TO DENVER, COLO.

Four years ago very few people had ever heard of Tanlac. Today it unquestionably has the largest sale of any medicine in the world, and is as well known in Canada and in this country. In the brief period of only four years time this now famous remedy has leaped from obscurity to the very pinnacle of success. Its fame in fact, has long since spread beyond the limits of the continent, and numerous inquiries regarding it are now being received from many foreign countries.

Very few people, however, fully realize what a really wonderful record Tanlac has made. Indeed, if it were not for the unquestionable facts and figures given out by the largest and best known drug firms of the country the story of its success would be hard to believe.

Up to January first the total sales of Tanlac amounted to approximately twelve million bottles. The demand, however, is increasing, for during the first ten weeks of this year over one million bottles were sold and distributed in the United States and Canada, the exact figure being 1,306,186 in three months.

At this rate, therefore, the sales for the present year will amount to more than five million bottles. This will mean that 17,000 bottles of Tanlac will be sold during every day of the year, or 2,100 bottles every hour of the average working day.

These figures are too stupendous for the average mind to grasp, but one may visualize what twelve million bottles mean by imagining them laid out in a single file end to end. Thus laid they would make a track of Tanlac from New York through Chicago, and on to Denver, Colorado; or they would form a double track of Tanlac from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. Piled end on end they would tower 135 times as high as Pikes Peak, or rise 13,333 times higher than the Woolworth building in New York, the tallest building in the world.

The demand for Tanlac has become so great that its sale instead of being measured by the gross as other preparations have been, is now reckoned by the car load, and even by the train load. In proof of this it is a noteworthy fact that the leading drug jobbers everywhere now buy Tanlac almost exclusively in car load lots. To supply the Pacific coast trade alone requires from forty to fifty car loads per year. Jobbers of the middle west are selling from seventy to eighty cars per year.

This well known drug form of Hossig-Elis Drug Company of Memphis, Tenn., has sold over forty car loads since the introduction of Tanlac in that state four years ago.

Within the past ninety days, ten car loads of Tanlac have gone to supply the demand of British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba, Canada.

The Owl Drug Company of San Francisco, the largest retail druggists on the Pacific Coast, state that they have sold more than 180,000 bottles at retail, which surpasses the remarkable record of the Jacobie Pharmacy Company of Alabama, who have sold approximately 80,000 bottles at retail.

Tanlac is composed of the most beneficial roots and herbs known to science. The formula complies with all national and state pure food and health laws of both the United States and Canada; and absolute merit and merit alone is responsible for its phenomenal and unprecedented success.

Tanlac is sold in Ada by Gwin & Mays Drug Co.—Adv.

Repetition.

Anyone gathering a sheaf of remarkable coincidences should include the following: Six brothers of Canis, Nova Scotia, bearing the Biblical names of Cyrus, Elias, Silas, Ananias, Zacharias and Cornelius, were working on a fish wharf when a heavy thunderstorm came up and one of them was struck by lightning. It was Ananias.—Boston Transcript.

Point She Noticed.

At a movie a young miss amused those near her with her remarks, showing her keen observation and interest in the picture. Her best remark came when an empty firekisha pulled by a Japanese coolie came down the street and stopped before a house. She piped up in a shrill voice: "He lost his horse."

What's The Answer?

(By MEREDITH DAVIS)

What's become of the old-fashioned Ultimate Consumer who could live within his means?

And what's become of the ancient and honorable institution one known as the One-Price Store?

The former is rapidly approaching the stage of extinction, crushed between the upper and nether millstones of higher cost of living and same old scale of pay. The latter is facing a similar fate because the ever-changing cost of production makes the maintenance of one price on any given article for any considerable time almost suicidal from the store keeper's standpoint.

You can't blame the workingmen, especially the unionized ones who have the power of numbers on their side, for getting whatever advance in wages they can. Nor can you blame the retailer of the products of this higher priced labor for charging the ultimate consumer correspondingly more. The retailer is entitled to a fair profit on his business, as the workman is entitled to a fair compensation for his toil and skill.

Of our 110,000,000 population, perhaps 5,000,000 belong to labor unions whose scales of wages have advanced materially in the last four or five years. With their families they represent probably 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 of our total population, or less than one-fifth.

Perhaps an aggregate of 5,000,000 or 10,000,000 will cover the number of retailers and producing firms that have had to raise their prices to the public because of the advanced cost of labor. The remaining 80,000,000 to 90,000,000 of us include the clerks, the professional men, the unorganized laboring elements, the farmers and their workers, the journalists, the preachers, the book agents and the traveling salesmen—all the motley agglomeration making up the class in our economic system known as the ultimate consumers—the "Fifth estate." If we may be pardoned an addition to Edmund Burke's historic "Fourth estate."

It is another case of the innocent bystander getting hit from both sides. If it were not that each month of our year is ushered in with a period known as the "peek-a-boo" envelope days, we of the "Fifth estate" might be able to regard the race between wages and costs as a sporting event. But the keener grows the contest, between wages and costs, the less welcome are those letters we get that are not addressed on the envelopes! (If you know what I mean!)

What's the answer? When is it going to stop? Today we are paying $14 and $16 for shoes that cost $6 and $8 three or four years ago. Today we are paying $50 and $60 for suits that used to cost $25 to $40. Today we are paying $50 and $75 a month rent for bungalows and houses that were $25 and $50 three years ago. Today we pay one-fifth more for a street car ride than a year ago, and one-half more for a letter postage stamp than two years ago. And so on up and down the scale.

The unions which are strong enough or have been able to prove the justice of their claims have been accorded increased wages to meet the expanding cost of living. The cost of living thereupon is given another boost upward to help the manufacturers and other employers of the higher paid labor meet their monthly payrolls. Then labor demands—and usually gets—another raise in wages to meet the new jump in the cost of living, and the manufacturers and retailers, not to be outdone, tack on another addition to the cost of living. Thereupon labor—oh, well, figure it out yourself!

Meanwhile, the ultimate consumer, the man who belongs to no union and who is not selling a manufactured product for which he can demand and receive a higher price—in short, the man who individually sells only the product of his own brain power or hands—is left far astern in this race between labor and cost of living.

What is the answer to this lopsided scheme of economics? It is a moral certainly that something is going to snap somewhere in our system unless a curb is put on the mounting cost of living. We are not all members of unions and we cannot all keep pace in our wages with the onward march of the cost of living. Is the vast majority of our population, the 80,000,000 of our "Fifth estate," to be exploited from both ends until there is nothing left to exploit?

Socialism isn't the answer. Communism isn't the answer. Syndicalism isn't the answer. Bolshevism certainly is not the answer. And capitalism as we understand it in its relation to Wall Street is not the answer. There must be some middle ground of sanity and common sense, where a decent regard for the rights of others will be an abiding influence in the councils of labor and in the councils of the employers of labor. There must be found a middle ground for the sake of that middle class or "Fifth estate" which constitutes the bulk of our population.

The answer must be found in the spirit of fair play and justice that characterizes the American nation. It must be found thru legislation—and, as a necessary corollary to that legislation—through enforcement of laws to regulate our economic standards; not in the old slipshod ways of before the war, but in a new and enlightened manner which surely must have come with the lessons of the war. This, then, is our greatest reconstruction—a problem far transcending the reconstruction period of the '70s. And America will not fail because she dare not fail.

"The Shepherd of the Hills."

The author, Harold Bell Wright, with Elsbey Reynolds, his publisher, has formed a company which will be known as the Harold Bell Wright Story-Picture Corporation, which will place upon the screen the best known of Mr. Wright's works. This announcement should be of interest not only to the countless millions of Mr. Wright's readers, as well as the leading motion picture producers, theatre managers and all others connected with the promotion of the motion picture industry, for in placing the stories of Mr. Wright in pictures a wealth of new and fine material will be given to the motion picture camera. Any one of this author's stories contains enough drama to make several motion pictures, and they should take a pre-eminent place in a field where a dearth of good material is often felt. The first story to be picture is "The Shepherd of the Hills," perhaps the best loved of all Mr. Wright's stories. The author and his assistants have been working for months on this production. The picture has been taken in the heart of the Ozarks and in California. It is a ten-reel super-production with incidental music forming an evening's entertainment. Coming to the American theatre Thursday and Friday, June 18 and 19. Watch papers every day for something new on this marvelous production.

The next morning his wife said: "Henry, I know what is the matter with the clock." "Well, what?" asked her husband. "It wants winding!" she said.

The Ardmore suggests that the National Capital be moved to their town. Har! Har! Har!

LET'S HAVE THE BOY SCOUTS.

The plan of the Lions Club of Ada to have a Boy Scout movement is one that should meet with the approbation of every citizen of the town.

Judge Busby who, by virtue of his office as county judge is also judge of the juvenile court, states that hardly a day passes that he is not called upon by some citizen to call to account some youthful miscreant for ravaging cherry trees, strawberry patches, etc.

Under the law in this state these juvenile marauders must either be turned loose or sent to the state reform school for not less than fifteen months. The crimes, if such they could be called, do not demand such drastic treatment, consequently ninety per cent or more of those apprehended are necessarily set free.

He says that in all of his experience he has not had before him more than two boys that had ever been connected with the scout movement, and there has been a scout organization in this city.

Boy scouts have eliminated cussing and cussedness and are making model young men of the members of their organization. They are taught industry, service and rectitude of conduct, and it is a rare thing that a boy scout is ever called to account for criminal conduct.

The youth of today is the citizenship of tomorrow, and it is going to be just what we make it. By all means let us have the boy scout organization in Ada, and let us make it a success from the jump.

Senator Lodge says he deprecates the discussion of the League of Nations as a partisan issue. He merely wanted it to be a Republican issue.

AMERICANS PAID LESS.

A comparison of pre-war prices with those now prevailing shows that the increase in the cost of living in the United States has been less than in any other country.

A comparison between the prices prevailing in September, 1913, ten months before the outbreak of the world war, with those of September, 1918, two months before the signing of the armistice, shows that the increase in the United States level of commodity prices was 107 per cent. In Canada, the increase was 115 per cent and in the United Kingdom, 133. For France, the comparison was with the prices of last May, to which time they had risen 235 per cent.

In all countries, the rise was accompanied by an increase in the amount of money in circulation and in the amount of bank deposits. In the United States, the per capita circulation in 1913 was $34.65. December 1, 1918, this had increased 62 per cent, to $56.23. During the same time, bank deposits in America increased almost threefold.

A year ago, vocal patriots were declaring that the war department had "ceased to function." When the armistice was signed, the American troops on the western front were second in number to the French, only, as was the extent of the front they held.

ARE SENATE SEATS FOR SALE?

In its disposition of Henry Ford's contest of the election of Truman H. Newberry of Michigan, the United States senate has an opportunity as plain as it duty to decide whether large and lavish, if not reprehensible, expenditure of money is enough to give title to a seat in that branch of congress; whether violations of the law—such as are charged—are to be condoned by a body whose function it is to frame laws.

There is no denial that Mr. Newberry's apparent plurality at the polls was obtained by the use of very large sums of money. The law limits the personal expenditures by or on behalf of senatorial candidates to $10,000. It is admitted that there was an outlay of $178,000 in Mr. Newberry's primary campaign alone. There is evidence for the presumption that an even bigger amount was used in furthering his election.

Mr. Ford has a right to demand from the senate a guarantee that a candidate who respects and obeys the law shall not be defeated by an opponent in whose interest the law is ignored and violated. There is, obviously, involved in this contest a more important consideration than Mr. Ford's political fortunes. There is the question whether such brazen attempts to influence elections by unlawful use of money are to be rewarded by membership in "the greatest deliberative body in the world," whether ballots or slush funds are to determine who shall hold public office.

At this moment the Democratic membership in the senate is two fewer than the Republican membership.

With Mr. Ford in and Mr. Newberry out the numerical strength of the parties would be equal. If, instead of a majority, the Republicans had but a parity of votes in that branch of congress, legislation upon the momentous internal problems that must soon be solved might easily take a very different course than it now seems likely to follow.

The senate's action and decision in this contest will be of the utmost concern to the country, which wants a continuance of the progressive tendencies which characterized the Democratic congresses for the last eight years; it will be of importance to Mr. Ford, who furnishes evidence that he was beaten by illegal means and methods; it will be of significance to the senate, which must have some thought of preventing a taint upon its membership.

The Anheuser-Busch folks in St. Louis are not dead or sleeping. They have to cut out the manufacture of beer, but they are still making "Bevo," a non-intoxicating drink which resembles beer. They get out a class publication to advertise "Bevo" and they are making it go. At the suggestion of this firm St. Louis is to spend $225,000 to advertise the city of St. Louis and to develop the agricultural resources of the state of Missouri. Primarily they will boost St. Louis, of course, but Carl J. Baer, an expert in farm production, has been engaged to work into the deal dope relating to farming, live stock breeding and dairying.

Americans fought to "establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity." It is therefore unbelievable that they would allow the fruit of that victory to be spoiled to satisfy the ambition of a few selfish partisans. Because the League of Nations is the only guarantee that can be offered to make the victory over militarism lasting, the American people are making their approval of the covenant known in tones that are distinct.

"Anyhow, many of the laws which are being claimed by the Democrats as their own were being discussed and urged for years, and was merely a happenstance that the Democrats were in power when they were enacted," says Republican Leader Mondell. Half a truth, Mr. Mondell. Just the same, the Democrats gave the country constructive legislation of which it had long been in crying need, and which the Republican party through its long years of control of congress had failed to enact. The Federal Reserve Act, for instance.

It only requires a little reading between the lines to get the real slant on the motives actuating some of the Republican politicians who have been denouncing the League of Nations covenant; the application of a little common sense shows that their motives are partisan, and that their opposition to the League springs wholly from the fact that our president, to whom he world looks to lead it from the bloody fields of war to the shining pathway of peace as Israel of old looked to Moses to lead her from captivity, happens to be a Democrat.

Through the activities of governmental departments, with the co-operation of the states and municipalities, thousands of discharged soldiers, sailors, marines and former war workers are being placed in permanent and profitable jobs. Although Republican opposition in the recent congress defeated the appropriation for the federal employment service, government officials have overcome the obstacle and are finding places for the returned fighters at the rate of 100,000 a week.

If our memory isn't far afield, none of the conspicuous opponents of the League of Nations were in Europe at any time during the war or has been there since. On the other hand, some of the leading advocates of the league have been over there where they got a first-hand picture of war's horrors, notable former Attorney General Wickersham and former Postmaster General Hitchcock.

Republican high-tariff advocates are going to find it difficult to get the country to accept prosperity as an issue. The country's prosperity is reflected in the enormous foreign trade, with the balance heavily on the side of exports, and the fact that the treasury department's call of March showed the country banks to have made the most notable increase on record.

Private Linster Kerr of Tahlequah is reported to have committed suicide on his way home from France by jumping from the Saxonia. Kerr had been ill for a long time and was believed to be temporarily insane.

The National Liquor Dealers' association will have something to pass resolutions about when they meet again. They can give President Wilson a vote of confidence.

"Progressives" in the present congress have surrendered everything to Boss Penrose but their political sobriquet—and he didn't want that.

Republican candidates for congress last fall promised to stand behind the president. But they were running then.

Former Governor C. N. Haskell banquetted some of the returning Oklahoma soldiers at the Savoy hotel in New York City where he now resides.

The State Press

Oklahoma City Times: At this stage in the investigation in the record of A. Mitchell Palmer, former alien property custodian, it appears much like a republican attempt to embarrass the administration by delaying the confirmation of Mr. Palmer's appointment as attorney general. For that purpose, it may be effective for a time, but it is apt to prove a boomerang, an aboriginal weapon of which the esteemed republicans may have heard.

Muskogee Times-Democrat: The socialist is a man who believes in dividing all fortunes that are greater than his own.

Star-Democrat: During the good year of 1919 we have had only one divorce for every three marriages celebrated in Pontotoc county, or just about that proportion. At the rate divorce has increased in this country we shall have a divorce for every marriage ten years from now, and fifteen years from now we shall have no marriages at all. This problem is for sociologists to ponder very soberly. These figures argue their own case. They prophesy the day when marriage home-life will have disappeared from Pontotoc county, and that day is only fifteen years away.

Star-Democrat: Sergeant York has gone back to his mountain home, married his sweetheart and settled down among his own people. Sergeant York is the hero of the war and his behavior since returning to the states is a certain guarantee of his reputation. A man who has sufficient common sense to stay out of vaudeville and refrain from exploiting the reputation he achieved in the line of duty has something to his credit besides physical courage.

Many Are Called, But—McAlester News-Capital: Ferris, Gore, Ames, Stewart, Wilson, McAdams, Hoffman, Russell, Harrison, Graves, Freeling, Murray, an even dozen. Thus is the list compiled of those whose names have been mentioned at various times as potential candidates for the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator. Yet how the list has dwindled. Gore and McAdams alone have made announcements that are regarded seriously. Judge Ames has joined the forces of the United States attorney general. Judge Stewart has been supposed to be in the "Barkis is willin'" attitude, but has also declared that he will not attempt the race. Wilson, it seems, might be induced to start but at present shows little or no interest. Hoffman, it is said, has never considered the matter seriously and Russell merely said: "Every man has a right to aspire to high office." Harrison and Graves belong to the newspaper entrants who apparently wish to be regarded as to "Jan. 1 candidate" only. Freeling is as communicative as the sphinx and Murray, now in South America, seemingly is as far from a real candidate as he is from his hermitage in Johnston county. Ferris' friends are patiently awaiting word from him that he intends to make the race, but, to the present, like the recipient of the letter that never came, his admirers still hope.

Why We Need "Blue Sky Law."

Gullibility, ignorance, the gambling instinct, lure of big money. These are the four motives that prompted a majority of the thousands who fell victims to the American confidence man last year and helped him line his purse with $10,000,000 of somebody's hard-earned money. And that sum does not include the millions gathered in by the various stock-jobbing schemes.

Land selling schemes, peddling of worthless mine and oil stocks and fake sporting events are the hand-maidens of the modern confidence man, who matches wits with the banker, capitalist and lawyer as well as flim-flamming of the ignorant.

Most of us in Oklahoma know some of these confidence fellows and if most of us would dig around in old desks and trunks, and some maybe not so old, we would find receipts and worthless stock certificates that are our diplomas from the hard and expensive school of experience.

The oil game has flourished phenomenally in this section as well as other territories contiguous to oil fields. The tempting "opportunity" to reap almost fabulous rewards for small investment has led hundreds of ordinarily discreet business men to let desire overrun judgment and to "take a chance." The temptation is heightened of course by the fact that "Bill made money out of it, why can't I?"

We do not mean to say that all oil stock propositions are illegitimate. On the contrary a great many of them are as worthy as any investment of like nature could be, but a great many are simply pure fakes and especially is this true of those which fight shy of investigation and whose bait is "sure thing."

The Oklahoma legislature has at last passed a "blue sky" law which is intended to protect citizens who won't protect themselves and their own interests. It has come too late to save millions of dollars, but if it is allowed to remain active it is sure to be beneficial to the very class that needs it. A fight is now being made to make it ineffective and one can but wonder who is behind the agitation.

The only arguments necessary in favor of such a law are the figures and facts quoted above.

THE TOWN GOSSIP

By MILTON LESTER

THERE SURE are.
SOME PECULIAR signs.
IN this town of Ada.
AND I think.
THAT SOME of the merchants.
OUGHT TO try
AND BE more careful.
BECAUSE I got fooled.
TWICE this morning.
I WAS walking past.
THE SURPRISE Store.
ON MAIN street.
AND I noticed.
A SIGN in the window.
WHICH READ:
"SHIRTS ONE-HALF off."
AND I stopped short.
AND THEN went in.
FOR I wanted to see.
HOW JOE Cole looked.
WITH HIS shirt.
HALF OFF.
BUT WHEN I got inside.
AND SAW him.
HE HAD his shirt on.
SAME AS other folks.
AND I went out.
VERY MUCH disappointed.
AND UP the street further.
I SAW a sign.
IN FRONT of The Model.
WHICH READ:
"EVERYTHING REDUCED."

AND I hung around.
FOR A few minutes.
AND DIRECTLY.
TWO BIG fat women.
CAME OUT of the store.
AND I said.
TO MYSELF:
"THERE'S TWO customers.
"THAT Mr. Scheinberg.
"SLIPPED UP on.
"FOR THEY haven't.
"BEEN REDUCED a bit."
AND I was.
KIND OF curious.
TO SEE how he reduced people.
AND I went inside.
AND ASKED him.
AND HE told me.
I WAS too fresh.
AND TO go ahead.
AND ATTEND to.
MY OWN business.
AND I went out.
AND WHEN I saw.
ANOTHER SIGN.
DOWN THE street.
WHICH READ:
"CORN BOUGHT here."
I DIDN'T stop.
ALTHOUGH I did have.
A CORN which I would.
HAVE LIKED to sell.
I THANK you.

Some Turnip, This.
Bill Morris of West 13th street brought in a very fine garden product in the form of a turnip today, same weighing four and one half pounds and measuring twenty inches in circumference and nine inches in diameter. However, we know Bill, and Bill, he won't work consequently the credit for the raising of this blue ribbon product is due Mrs. Morris rather than Bill.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by Mary Graham Bonner

MR. AND MRS. CROW.

"It's too bad," said Mr. Crow.
"It's too bad," said Mrs. Crow. "Caw, caw, caw; it is very sad."
"Very sad, indeed; caw, caw, caw," said Mr. Crow. "And I really feel quite ill."

"I hate to worry you, my dear," said Mrs. Crow, "but I fear I won't live long. Oh, caw, caw, caw, this is dreadful. I can hardly speak any more."

"My throat is so dry I can hardly speak," said Mr. Crow.

"I'm sure he doesn't mean to be so unkind and thoughtless and cruel," said Mrs. Crow.

"No," said Mr. Crow, "I am sure he hates the very thought of being cruel. For I have often heard him say so. He just doesn't know. Oh, how are we to tell him?"

Just then the very person they were talking about came around, and the person was a young boy named Dick.

"Caw, caw, caw," said Mrs. Crow.

"Good morning, pets," said Dick.

"There," said Mr. Crow, "he calls us pets. He really does love us."

"Yes," said Mrs. Crow, "but how are we to tell him that we won't live long to be loved if we don't get it?"

"I don't know, I don't know," caw, caw, caw; I don't know," said Mr. Crow.

"Here is a fine breakfast for you," said Dick. "I've brought you worms and bugs and seeds. It's a fine breakfast, and you can eat it in courses just like I eat my breakfast in courses."

"First, I have my orange juice," and as he said that Mr. and Mrs. Crow said, "Caw, caw, caw."

"You almost sound as though you would like some orange juice yourselves," said Dick. And the crows nodded their heads as best they could, but Dick didn't think they really meant it.

And they didn't want orange juice, but oh, the world juice had such a very pleasant sound. They were thirsty. Both these crows had belonged to Dick only a very, very, very short time, which, of course, was lucky for them.

Dick had found out what they should eat, but somehow he didn't think of them as wanting any water. A strange thought, on his part, but still it was so. He didn't mean to be cruel, though. No, he loved his two black crows.

"Then," continued Dick, and the crows hung their heads sadly, for he was no longer talking about juice, "then," repeated Dick, "you can eat your bugs in place of it, and in place of the porridge which I eat next you can have your worms, and in place of the egg I have you can have some seeds."

"Isn't that a nice breakfast?" And Dick went off, thinking he had given

"Here is a Fine Breakfast for You," his two pet crows, who were so nice and tame and friendly, a very fine breakfast.

The next day they looked so poorly they could hardly eat and a friend of Dick's came over to look at them, for Dick was awfully worried.

"What do you give them to eat?" asked the friend.

And Dick told him.

"That's all right, and do you give them good water to drink?"

"No," said Dick. "How horrible! I didn't think they liked water. I don't know why I ever got such an idea. Oh, dear, that is why they look so poorly."

"That must be the reason," said the friend, "and I think that would be reason enough to make me feel poorly if I hadn't had any water."

So Dick got water for the crows, and oh, how they did caw and caw their thanks and gratitude.

"I'm so glad I asked you to help me," said Dick to his friend, "but it teaches me a lesson to find out everything which should be given to pets in advance, for I almost killed my precious birds, and if I had, oh, how terribly I would have felt."

But the crows were soon all right again and everything seemed quite perfect.

Just Over the Hill.

Two children were out for a walk with their mother and she passed over the brow of the hill a little ahead of them, and was lost to their sight. The little boy burst into wild weeping, and the sister said, "Do not cry as if your heart were broken. As soon as we get to the top of the hill we shall see mother again."

When we weep for loved ones who have gone on before to the Heavenly Country, we should remind ourselves that just over the hill of this life we shall see them again.—Girl's Companion

GOLDEN JUBILEE OF ST. MARY'S COLLEGE

By the Associated Press

ST. MARY'S, Kan., June 13.—Fifty years of continuous service will be celebrated in the golden jubilee exercises to be held by St. Mary's College during commencement week, June 14 to 17. The exercises will commemorate the granting of the charter of the college in 1869.

St. Mary's College had its first foundation in a school established originally for the Indians by Jesuit missionaries in 1839, near what is now Centerville, Kan. This school was later transferred in 1848 to its present site, then called St. Mary's Mission. In 1851, the first cathedral of Kansas was built here and St. Mary's became the center of the Catholic faith for the state. During the earlier years of the 60's a few white students began to attend the school and in 1869, a charter was granted and the college took up the work of higher education.

A number of dignitaries of the church have been invited for the jubilee including: Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis, Bishop Byrne of Galveston, a graduate of St. Mary's; Bishop Lillis of Kansas City; Bishop Ward of Leavenworth; Bishop Hennessy of Wichita and Bishop Cunningham of Concordia.

On June 16, a number of honorary degrees will be conferred upon men among the clergy and laity.

The alumni association, through its executive committee, has voted to erect a memorial arch to the alumni who took part in the nineteen of whom did not survive the war, including Lieut. William T. Fitzsimmons of Kansas City, the first American officer to be killed in France.

TREMENDOUS PLAY OF PRESENT-DAY EVENTS

Screen Classics, Inc. Production. "Why Germany Must Pay" to be Seen at American Theaters.

"Why Germany Must Pay," the great Screen Classics Inc. production to be shown today at the American theater, is a play of the timeliest description, dealing with the ideals of the world which ruthless Germany has wantonly destroyed and for which she must be made to pay in full.

It tells the story of how a young Alsatian, serving in the German army, is horrified at how his officers and fellow soldiers have developed from the men he knew them to be before the war into fiends let loose to ravage and destroy the happiness of the world. How women and children are their rightful prey and where neither ideals or religion hold place in their debased hearts. Almost insane with the horror of it all he deserts and escapes to fight for the cause of freedom and right. The story is one of intense and gripping power—showing in realistic vividness the deeds of these war-mad people, but showing also that pure and beautiful love can also flourish and grow in the hearts of those who fight for a righteous cause. A true romance gives beauty and pathos to the intense story.

An all-star cast of players is seen in this production and numbers such distinguished names as Creighton Hale, Florence Billings, Helen Furguson, Frank Currier, Fred C. Truesdell, Henry Kolker, Joseph Kilgour, Margaret McWade, Earl Schenck, Florence Short, Baby Ivy Ward, and many others, including the noted Japanese actor T. Tamamoto.

The play was written by Maxwell Karger and directed by Charles Miller under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger, director general of the Metro studios.

Official Army Report Shows Y. M. C. A. Greatest Welfare Organization

San Antonio, Tex., June 13.—

Official army reports on the work done by welfare organizations with the 36th Division, made by Major Maurice K. Gordon, division inspector to the Inspector General of the First Army corps, showed that the Army Y. M. C. A. was the only welfare activity in the division of sufficient scope to be considered in the official investigation made by order of the War Department.

The official report said that the work of the Y. M. C. A., was "carried on in an efficient and satisfactory manner" and that the organization performed a valuable service to the division.

The figures given in the official report showed that the Y. M. C. A. completely supplied thirty-three stations while eighteen others were tended by traveling secretaries leaving only five stations in the division without Y co-operation. There were fifty-six "Y" canteens in operation.

Reading Matter Furnished. From these "Y" centers, according to the report, were conducted all entertainment and welfare activities. Forty-one "Y" secretaries under the direction of Jefferson Reynolds, of Sherman, Tex., and seventeen "Y" women, directed the welfare work.

During four months ending May 1, there were 750,000 papers delivered to the soldiers of the division, 30,000 magazines, 22,000 song books and enough writing paper to permit unlimited correspondence. Fourteen tents were provided by the "Y" for recreational purposes.

To promote athletics among the soldiers of the division, the Y. M. C. A. provided 14,915 pieces of athletic goods and equipment and furnished athletic director to train the soldiers for army competitions.

In the music line the "Y" provided 27 pianos and 135 other musical instruments. To help entertain the soldiers and help them entertain themselves the "Y" furnished the division 600 costumes, eleven electric lighting plants, nineteen stationary and nine portable motion picture machines, and 40 stages for entertainments.

650 motion picture shows were staged by the Y according to the report to the inspector general in the official report, and 2910 entertainments were given in the "Y" huts.

Women Were Influential.

That the men of the 36th division had opportunities to read is evidenced by the item in the official report showing that 12,000 books provided by the American Library Association were in circulation, the Y secretaries acting as the librarians. In the educational line 3,600 of the soldiers of the 36th were students and were taught by the women Y. M. C. A. secretaries. The effect upon the morals of the men was noticeable according to the company officers.

Two of the women Y secretaries with the 142nd infantry, Martha Kinsey and Barbara Waldo, through the moral influence they exerted, affected a decided decrease in Cognac sales with the result that fewer of the soldiers were sent to the guard house. Other officers declared that where the Y women secretaries were stationed the soldiers were better and shavd oftener and were more careful about their conversation.

Five of the Y women secretaries with the 36th division were Texans, Miss Annie Cornick of San Angelo, who was with the 143 Infantry; Miss H. L. Jameson, 1424 North Smith street, Waco, Texas, who served with the M. P. Company as casuals at Tonnere; Miss L. M. Tom (dispatch gave address as Bunge, Texas, probably Runge; Miss Maude Walker, Wichita Falls, Texas, who served with the 111th Engineers at Vizannes, Etourvey and Chaserey; and Miss Kate Friend of Waco, who returned recently.

HEALTH PROGRAM IS NATION WIDE

PLAN BEING DISCUSSED BY EXPERTS AT NATIONAL TUBERCULOSIS ASSOCIATION MEETING SATURDAY.

By the Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 12. Plans for a countrywide program for the protection of the nation's health during the reconstruction era will be discussed by government experts and health authorities from every state in the Union at the annual meeting of the National Tuberculosis Association which opens here Saturday, June 14. The sessions will continue until June 17.

Fifteen hundred state and local voluntary anti-tuberculosis organizations, which have led the fight against the disease in the past ten years, will be represented by delegates, who will make a strong plea for further co-operation on the part of the government in their campaign.

As a result of their representations, based on wartime revelations, they hope that a division of tuberculosis will be created in the United States Public Health Service.

New truths about tuberculosis learned during the war will be presented by army and medical men who fought the disease overseas and in the military hospitals here.

Among those who will address the meetings are: Dr. Livingston Farrand, Director-General, American Red Cross; Colonel Geo. E. Bushnell of the Surgeon General's Office; John D. Commons, Professor of Economics, University of Wisconsin; Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, Dean of the Medical School University of Michigan and Dr. David R. Lyman, President of the National Tuberculosis Association.

It will pay you to watch the Want Ad columns of the News.

BORDER SERVICE IS ATTRACTIVE TO YOUNG

By the Associated Press

MARFA, Tex., June 13.—Mexican border service is attractive to young Americans who like to ride, shoot and live in the open. To prove that the lure of being "riders of the purple sage" is strong for his men, Colonel George T. Langhorne, commanding the Big Bend district of Texas, quotes figures to show that 467 of his men had re-enlisted since the recruiting order was issued in an effort to retain border veterans in the cavalry service. During the first month the recruiting order was in effect 350 men re-enlisted and the total enlistments for a second or third tour of duty in the Big Bend are more than 18 per cent of the total strength of the border troops in this district.

On the outpost at Ruidosa, miles from the nearest habitation, 90 per cent of Troop M, Eighth cavalry, re-enlisted. The machine gun troop showed the highest percentage with 29 re-enlistments. Troop L was a close second with 28 re-enlistments. Colonel Langhorne considers the showing of his recruiting campaign all the more remarkable from the fact that the district command has been stationed in the Big Bend district, away from a large city, almost two years. This, he says, explains the eagerness for re-enlistment on the part of the men. The morale is higher and the spirit of regimental loyalty more intense because the men are thrown more together in the wilds, are not distracted from their military duties by the attractions of a large city nearby and come in closer and more personal contact with the officers commanding them. This explains why the men voted almost as a unit to remain in the Big Bend rather than transfer to Fort Bliss, Colonel Langhorne added.

JOSEPHINE NAPOLEON ANSWERS EMERSON

Far be it from us to start something we can't finish. But when we printed the article about A. H. Emerson, our noted young song writer Monday it seems we started muses to working all over town and some of them seem to want to answer A. H.

Yesterday afternoon some young lady who called herself Josephine Napoleon called the office over the phone and asked if we would print a verse in reply to Emerson. We told her "yes," so here goes from Josephine:

How anxious I am to meet you,
But not at a masquerade ball,
The hours will be long till I greet you,
I promise I won't let you fall.

Another poem inspired by Emerson is given below. It was written by a man who is interested in young people, but who asked that we not give his name. It runs:

To A. H. E.:
Boyibus kisibus,
Sweet girlorium,
Girlibus likibus,
Wanta somorum.

Papabus hearibus,
Soundus somorum,
Kickibus boyabus,
Outa de dorum.

Another young lady who signs herself "Normal Girl," sends in this:

He is monarch of all he survey;
His right there is none to dispute;
The girls in this town are his prey,
I would call the young gent a galant.

S. O. S.

FRIENDS AND PATRONS:

The statements I have made show you that some of my troubles result from the demand of ice delivery in such small quantities, that the price we get does not pay for the service—you want your ice delivered by noon, which means that we must have enough delivery outfits to cover the entire city in the forenoon, thus doubling the quantity that would be needed if the deliveries were distributed throughout the day, and doubling the cost of service.

The Government Food Administration, after investigating these matters, recommended the elimination of number of wasteful methods in order to avoid the necessity of increasing the price of ice, especially to working people and small consumers. These recommendations will work to your benefit, and among them are these:

That ice be distributed upon coupons to all customers as nearly as possible.

That a large part of the small sales be made from local ice boxes, or a wagon instead of attempting delivery into houses.

These rules enable them to maintain service, and give good values, and benefits the customer, and are based upon years of experience of the people in the industry.

Also, special deliveries to residences which cost always more than the amount realized from the same are entirely discontinued except in case of sickness.

This is the help we ask of you now: namely, BUY COUPONS, and for minimum quantities of 25 pounds—as much more as you can afford.

FEDERATION OF LABOR IS IN FAVOR OF BEER

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 12.—Introduction of a resolution proposing that the American Federation of Labor go on record as against wartime prohibition and in favor of excluding 2-3-4 per cent beer from the provisions of both wartime and national prohibition precipitated a hot battle of words at yesterday's session of the federation's reconstruction program.

The resolution was carried by an overwhelming majority. It provided that a strong protest embodying its essential points be sent to President Wilson and congress.

Guaranty Bank Correspondent Calls Us "Gimlet"

J. W. Teter, vice-president of the State National Bank, of Oklahoma City, writes a letter to the Guaranty State Bank of Ada, in which he refers to the News as a "Gimlet." We thought the News had graduated out of the "Gimlet" stage, but at any rate we do not take exceptions to Mr. Teter's facetious reference, for he was referring to the half page ad which the Guaranty State had in the News a few days ago, and says that if all they say in the ad is true they ought to raise the price of their stock at least 50 cents on the dollar.

We might inform Mr. Teter that if it happens, it appears in the News, and that if it appears in the News it is true.

Mr. Teter's letter follows:

June 11, 1919.
Mr. Clyde C. Randel,
President Guaranty State Bank,
Ada, Oklahoma.

Dear Clyde:
We have the last edition of the Ada "Gimlet," in which is displayed a half page ad of the Guaranty State Bank. If all the things which they say in this edition are true, you ought to raise the price on your stock at least 50c on the dollar. Here's hoping that your shadow may continue to lengthen and your tribe to increase.

If the State National can in any way contribute to your future success, do not hesitate to call upon us.

Yours very truly,
J. W. TETER,
Vice-President.

MORRIS REVIVAL MAKING PROGRESS AT STONEWALL
The revival meeting which started at the First Baptist church last Saturday is progressing nicely, meetings being held twice daily.

Rev. C. C. Morris, pastor of the First Baptist church at Ada, and Rev. Ford and wife are conducting the meetings. Rev. Morris has been giving his congregations some excellent sermons, and not enough of the Stonewall people are availing themselves of the opportunity to hear him.

Let everyone attend these services and help make this meeting one of the best ever held in Stonewall.—Stonewall News.

Thursday Night Five Hundred Club.
Mr. and Mrs. Tilman Shelton entertained the Thursday Night Five Hundred club at their new home on East Main street last evening. A profusion of sweet peas and ferns decorated the tables. Members present were Mr. and Mrs. Vandell Lane, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Sledge, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alderson, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Ebey, and Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Bogan. Special guests were Mrs. F. M. Wood of Wichita, Kansas, who is the houseguest of her sister, Mrs. Tilman Shelton, Dr. and Mrs. Cummings, and Charles Orr. A very pretty salad course was served.

CEMENT PLANT INCREASES OUTPUT

70,000 BARRELS OF CEMENT BEING SHIPPED OUT EACH MONTH—PRODUCTION DOUBLE.

Few people in Ada realize the immensity of the industry in our midst known as the Oklahoma Portland Cement company. To find out something of what they are doing a reporter for the News called on Mr. Chandler, the manager, yesterday. While he was reticent to talk of his own accomplishments he was glad to tell of the work the company is doing and what they expect to do.

The high water mark for production at the quarries at Lawrence previous to this year was 25,000 tons, which was in March, 1918. In the first month of Mr. Chandler's administration, which was March, 1919, they turned out 30,000 tons. This amount has been increasing daily until now they are getting twice the shale and stone from the quarries they have been averaging in previous years.

The company has a new superintendent at the quarries, Mr. V. Diefenderfer, who comes from the Lehigh Portland Cement company in Pennsylvania. He is one of the best quarry men in the country and his remarkable knowledge is already being used to great advantage for the local people.

The amount of the finished product shipped out is also showing a large gain. During the month of April the local company shipped no less than 70,000 barrels of cement, which amounts to approximately $150,000. This production is being kept up from month to month now and Mr. Chandler says they expect to increase it to a much greater figure in a short time.

The new plan, when completed, will have a capacity of 4,500 barrels of the finished product daily, exclusive of the old mill. Mr. Reith, designing engineer for the Cement Securities company, who designed the new plant, has agreed to furnish us with an article soon on the construction of this plant and what they can accomplish, with it.

Five hundred men are employed by the cement company at Ada and their value to the town and country cannot be estimated.

Court News

The case of F. Z. Holley, charged with selling patent medicines containing entirely too much alcohol, came up before Justice Brown this morning, but on petition from Holley's attorneys the trial was postponed until June 30. Dr. Holley was represented by attorneys King and Crawford.

The tax collector is a busy man these days. As the time for paying state and county taxes nears the close more people come in each day to pay. Mr. Daggs reports $25,000 in taxes collected Wednesday and more than $30,000 collected yesterday. A large number of people are in town for this purpose today and from now until Monday night the collectors expect to be rushed to death.

Homer T. Carney was placed in the city jail last night. About two months ago the mayor assessed a fine against him of $29.75 for carrying a concealed weapon. Carney paid $5.00 of the fine and was given 30 days in which to pay the balance. This he did not do and last night he was told either to pay or go to jail and serve out the time. The police say he refused to pay so they locked him up. The mayor says Mr. Carney will remain in jail until he pays the fine or serves out the time.

R. T. Hatchett, deputy United States revenue collector, is officiating at the county clerk's office. He represents Hubert L. Bolen of Oklahoma City, who is federal revenue collector for this state. Mr. Hatchett looks after the work in Pontotoc, Johnston, Atoka and Coal counties. His work is more of an educational nature than anything else and any one who cannot unravel his income tax mystery will be gladly served at Mr. Hatchett's office. He with his wife and baby is rooming at Mr. Schreiber's on South Rennie.

The domestic affairs of King Abram and wife negroes, were aired in Justice H. J. Brown's court yesterday afternoon. The Abrams have been living on Sandy, but recently decided to separate. Mrs. Abrams returned to the house after their separation to get her household goods and wearing apparel and the two got entangled in a quarrel. She accused Abram of "kicking her in the mouth." This he denied. As this was the first time they had appeared in court the county attorney decided to let them go by Abram paying the costs of the case without a fine.

Cement Plant Has Pretty Yard.

The Oklahoma Portland Cement people are showing their interest in yard beautification by the manner in which they have laid out their office premises. The office sits on a two acre plot. Around the ground are 50 young shade trees. This spring they put out no less than 2300 flower plants of different varieties, besides the dozens of rose bushes which are beginning to bloom. The ground is covered with well kept grass and as a whole makes a very striking appearance. J. L. Coeman, landscape gardener, is employed regularly to keep the ground in shape.

Judge Sandlin Here.

Judge J. M. Sandlin of Duncan, Okla., and a member of the state board of education, is in the city the guest of J. M. Gordon, president of the East Central State Normal school. Judge Sandlin is one of the most industrious members of the board and takes a deep interest in the work of education throughout the state. He is here to look into the work of the Normal in his capacity as member of the board.

Knights Templar, Attention!

Ada Commandery No. 16, Knights Templar, will hold a communication at Masonic Hall this evening for work in the Red Cross and Temple degrees. A full attendance of all members is desired and visiting brethren are especially invited to be present. All are urged to be on hand at 8 o'clock sharp.

At the Ada Playhouses

AMERICAN.

"Shall Germany Pay?" is the title of the great picture at the American tonight. It is known as the greatest picture of modern times—built upon historical facts. To show that the picture is of a patriotic nature the question is asked, "Shall the tears of a million women be shed in vain?" You will miss it if you miss it.

Mrs. Biles Hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Biles of 201 East Thirteenth are having as their guests this evening at a 6 o'clock chicken dinner, Mrs. Lulu Hays, Mrs. Earl Sumner, Mrs. Ruth King, Mrs. Cleveland Hall, Mrs. Clyde Hodges, Mrs. Skinner, Miss Beuna Nolan, Miss Leuna Hardin, and Miss Lillian Cole.

Protests Against High Valuation His Realestate

A letter protesting against the high valuation of his land has just recently been addressed to the board of equalization of Seminole county by a taxpayer, but the writer was unfortunate and lost the letter on the streets of Ada yesterday.

It is rather an amusing epistle in its native state and for that reason we reproduce it without even correcting the spelling, grammar or typography. By leaving all names blank we do no one any injustice in its publication. The letter follows:

Ada-Okla. June 12, 1919
Hon. Equalization Board
Seminole Co. at Wewoka;
Gentlemen; I have your postal Card of June 6th inst. relative to hiking the Value of SE 1/4 & North 1/2 of Sec. 2 Twp 5 N Range 6 E in Seminole Co. from $800.00 to $1050.00 Now I think that much raise is too high. I would not object to a value say of $950.00. This land is so rough & rocky that even a goat could not make a living there. There was a bunch of Goats got into a fight on this land and the hills were so high and steep they all rolled off onto the adjoining tracts. There was a couple of strangers passing thru the country and endeavored to walk across this tract and both fell off the South side into South Canadian River. It was rented one year for a Skunk Farm but the hills were so steep the young skunks all rolled off onto adjoining allotments and caused a damage suit for trespass. A loan inspector went out to get the real Value, but he fell off the West side into a wire fence and threatened to sue the owner for damages. I really think you would do a very grave injustice to make the value of this land to the amount contemplated. Ask Don Campbell.
Agent for Owner.

GAS COMPANY HAS NEW COMPETITOR SAYS THIS FIRM

Coffman, Bobbitt & Sparks Co. hardware, announce a demonstration of the famous Detroit Wickless Oil Stove at their store on June 20 and 21. "This stove," declared Mr. Coffman, "is the strongest competitor the local gas company has. It is built to serve, not to scare the life out of folks as some of the low class oil stoves do. It is as easy to handle as gas, and you have a hot fire the moment a match is struck to the stove. It will be worth the time of any housewife to visit our store during the demonstration and learn what can be done with coal oil."

Soldiers Pass Through.

Two train loads of the Thirty-sixth division passed through before daylight and the second about 7 o'clock. There were several Ada boys on the trains but we could not get their names. They told Miss Anna Bell Glenn at the depot they expected to be back in Ada with their discharges by next Wednesday.

A Message About

Separate Skirts

This season the separate skirt is enjoying an unprecedented vogue. Small wonder—for have you seen the gleaming new silks from the heavier weaves such as baronet satin to the daintiest embroidered georgettes which contribute to its success. The general lines are long and narrow and oftentimes there are tucks and plaits and pockets. White predominates—but there is plenty of color to add to the gaiety of interesting summer backgrounds. White Wash Skirts of cotton fabrics are also extensively used.
